

Wilson Veterinary Hospital Reproductive Medicine Contract

We look forward to working with you and your dog on your breeding journey. In order to provide the healthiest, most positive experience possible, there are some requirements that breeding candidates must meet:

- All breeding dogs must be current on reproduction exam for the heat cycle on which you are planning to breed her. If there is any health problem that may be worsened by pregnancy, our doctors reserve the right to refuse reproductive services. All males must be current on a reproduction exam yearly.
- If a heart murmur is diagnosed upon exam, breeding animals will be required to be cleared by a board-certified cardiologist in order to pursue breeding services.
- All breeding dogs must be current a rabies vaccine and heartworm test at the time of their reproductive services. Proof of current vaccination and negative heartworm test must be provided at the time of appointment.
- Breeding animals must be of sound temperament. Examination, blood draws, semen collection, and insemination must be permitted without sedation or excessive restraint. If the dog poses a safety risk to themselves, our staff, or the hospital's equipment, reproduction services will be discontinued.
